

Jay Prewitt Joins The Latimer Group as Director of Coaching & Facilitation

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
August 1, 2022

Wallingford, Conn. - The Latimer Group, the provider of business communication coaching to Fortune 500 firms worldwide, has announced the addition of James “Jay” Prewitt as Director of Coaching & Facilitation. Prewitt joins the Latimer team in a senior leadership role following a productive run as one of the firm’s coaches and facilitators.

“We could not be more excited to add Jay to our leadership team, not only because he is already a proven and trusted teacher of our content, but because of the powerful and instructive career experiences he brings to bear on his work for our clients,” said Dean Brenner, CEO & Founder of The Latimer Group. “Jay knows what it takes to build effective corporate communication cultures and to deploy persuasive communication techniques, even in difficult circumstances. His familiarity with our team, our curriculum and our mission will also allow him to bring a strong voice and perspective to our clients from day one.”

In his role, Prewitt will manage Latimer’s Facilitation Team which teaches the entire curriculum, both in person and virtually, to The Latimer Group’s global client base. He will also be directly involved with the Learning Team, contributing towards the constant improvement of content and teaching methods.

“I am enthusiastic about what we do, and I personally connect with the company’s guiding principle that great communication skills can change and improve our world,” said Prewitt. “After working as a coach & facilitator with the team, I have grown to respect and admire my colleagues here and the work that we do for our client partners. It’s always rewarding seeing The Latimer Model impact large teams and organizations, and help them reach ambitious goals.”
